PAY AS YOU GO.

If you would have no slivered hair Before it's time, if you would show. A forehead free from lines of care, There is a way—pay as you go.

If you would leave this troubled earth
A little Heaven here, and know
A life made long by healthful mirth
And awest content—pay as you go.

If you would hear your door-bell ring Without the fright that duns bestow And gladly see the postman bring A letter strange—pay as you go.

If you without a blush would meet And greet each person high or low, If you would proudly walk the street And have none barred—pay as you go.

If you with independent pride
Would say that not a man you owe,

If you would not be forced to hide And ite and eringe—pay as you go. If you at night would soundly rest And wake without the sense of woe That makes you norvous and depresse And won't shake off—pay as you go.

If you would have a bank account For rainy days and watch it grow, And always have a snug amount About your ciothes—pay as you go.

Pay as you go—go as you pay—
And earth will Heaven be below—
But if you try the other way
It will be hell. Pay as you go.

TREASURE TROVE.

Untold Millions Plugged in Walls and Sunk in Lakes.

Why Mexico Can Truthfully Be Called the Eldorado of Treasure Hunters e Eldorado of Treasure Hunter Gold and Silver Hidden from View in Old Structures.

The cupidity of the Spaniards who landed with Cortez upon the shores of Mexico was first incited by the golden trinkets which the Indians brought to them to exchange for European tawdry, says the Two Republics. It was the love of the precious metals that led them to deeds of bravery far eclipsing any thing of modern years and equaling the exploits of the olden knights. The history of the torture of Montexuma for the purpose of ascertaining the point where the kingly treasure of millions upon millions in golden jewelry was buried substantiates the fact of the real object of the Spaniards in conquering the valley of the Anahuac. Historians lay great stress upon the riches in precious metals of the rulers of the several empires, but more particularly upon the great wealth of Montesuma of the Grand Tenochtitlan, the present city of Mexico. Tenochtitlan, the present city of Mexico. In the description of the jewelry and other objects from the skillful hands of the Artec In the description of the jewelry and other objects from the skillful hands of the Artec metal workers one is transported to the wildest scope of imagination verging beyond the wonderful tales of the miraculous pieces of mechanism detailed in the "Arabian Nights." The golden bird with tempered pieces of metal to give it the exact solored plumage of the natural bird which it represented and the contrivance to make it sing, the chameleon lizard in gold and in the varied hues of nature, are some of the objects found by Cortez and his companions in the Aztec capital.

Where was this vast treasure of wealth, which, it is claimed, exceeded any thing then possessed by any European monarch, buried! Some say it was buried beneath the waters of Lake Tezcoco, and others claim on the present site of the Iturbide Hotel. Wherever it was stored, its hiding place still remains dead to the world. Probably in no other country in the universe is ably in no other country in the universe is there more buried treasure than in Mexico. Nearly every week cases of unearthing treasures are reported in some part of the Republic. Banks in Mexico are of recent origin, which fact, with the former in-Republic. Banks in Mexico are of recent origin, which fact, with the former insecurity from revolutions, probably in a measure accounts for the present finding of so much coin and jewelry. The custom of sinking money under brucks in the floors and plugging it in holes in the walls commenced with the occupation of the country by the Spaniards. Even until to-day the custom is in vogue in many parts of Mexico. Unlike most nations, the Mexicans, as a rule, hold what they accumulate, not investing it in enterprises when there are any great risks of loss. Little by little large capitals are acquired, and are sunk in the earth or are plugged up in walls, and many times are forever lost to the world. Two years ago a treasure was found while making repairs in the Conception Church. Without doubt the largest and most valuable treasures are still hidden from view in the churches, old convents and monasteries in this city. The Catholic church was the wealthlest institution in Mexico, as the silver rails and rich ornaments still to be seen in the temples of God in the Aztec capital attest. The frequent revolutions with which Mexico was cursed up to twelve years ago made it a necessity for the priests to have secret vaults to store the ernaments of the wax images, the service of the church and the tithes. That by death, sudden departures and other causes, the vaults with their treasures in time should have been lost to the world is not miraculous.

should have been lost to miraculous.

The latest discovery of a treasure has just been made in this city. A woman of advanced years has lived for a short time in a room in the old Regina convent, on Regina street. She paid no rent, her quartors being given her by a charitable person name is not known. One day while Regina street. She paid no rent, her quartors being given her by a charitable person whose name is not known. One day while the old woman was driving a nail in one of the walls she noticed that it went in very easily, not giving the required resistance. Impelled by curiosity, the woman commenced to make an excavation in the wall, and with little labor soon opened a cavity is which she found a number of pieces of silverware, which it is supposed formed a part of the convent church service. The woman made the discovery known to het benefactor, who took out the pieces of plate, severally reprimanding her for her curiosity, and also telling her that they belonged to him and that she must keep the secret, promising that he would give her a piece of land where she could peacefully pass the rust of her days. The eld lady continued living in the room, however, and soon after made another excavation in the wall, in which she discovered a sealed alla (earthen jar). She broke it, and in it discovered forty or fifty dollars in gold coins, a reliquary in which was the wax bust of a monk on which was a hardly legible inscription, and moreover some documents or deeds to houses, and one telling of a hidden treasure, with all descriptions where it is to be found. This time the old woman did not tell the charitable person of her discovery. She went and consulted a Mr. Balandrano, to whom she took all the documents found with the exception of the one telling of the place where the treasure was hidden. It is said that Mr. Noriega, who learned of the discovery made by the old woman, purchased the land where the treasure is supposed to be buried, and has already commenced hunting for it.

The Great Monthly Magazine of

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE IN 1889.

WHY Has it such an enormous circula-tion? Experts estimate that between two and three millions of people read each BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above every development of wood-engraving in America and it has fostered American authors. It is alive to the silves of to-day. What it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE Whatever other periodicals may come into the family, the great reading world has found out that "no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." "Its success is explained by its contents."

BECAUSE The greatest writers of the read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally comes. It was for THE CENTURY that General Grant first wrote his reminiscenses of important battles.

BECAUSE It is publishing the life of private secretaries. Of this it has been said. The young man who is not reading it roba himself of that which he will hunger for. The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may begin at any time.

BECAUSE It is printing those remarks—the Exile System," by George Kennian, which are attracting universal attention and are being reprinted in hundreds of foreign newspapers, but are not allowed to enter Russin.
The "Chicago Tribune" asys that "no other magazine articles printed in the English language just now touch upon a subject which sovitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are "as judicial as the opinion of a Supreme Court tribunal—as thrilling as the most sensational drama."

BECAUSE During 1889 THE CENTURE is to have a series of engravings of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver in the world, who has spenifour years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by Geo. W. Cable; accasional richty illustrated papers of the current International Sunday-school lessons; interesting Illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of hamorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romance of Dolland," he are write.

A Powerful Argument.

In all this Samoan matter, the attitude of Great Britain has many, no one knows. The interwould make her opposed to German domination in Samoa, but which held her in check.

The truth must eventually dawn maintenance of her scattered and unwieldy empire is impossible. Autonomy must sooner er later be granted to Australia-her government must be independent. The same is true of Canada. That these large and growing countries should be held in check and controlled for the distant mother country will soon strike their people as an injustice. And when they realize it, separation will come. The separation will be reckoning, but it will surely come and that before long.

J. F. HALLOCH, State Controller, has written a letter to T. V. Julien, County Clerk, advising him that before the claims for the expenses was responsible for the statements made in the papers, and therefore counsel was not entitled to demand by force the names of controller, the county Clerk, advising him that the claims for the expenses was responsible for the statements made in the papers, and therefore counsel for Parnell said he was entitled to demand the names of the author of the article because he beauty that the statements is a statement of the statemen has written a letter to T. He was taken into custody at his warrant upon the State Treasury in favor of the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for the amount so certified. The stand taken by the State Controller may be provoked by a safe degree of caution, but it apparently is in the face of a mandatory law. It may be possible that the law is Trace to-day O'Brien refused to allow in conflict with certain provisions Healy, his counsel, to apologize for of the Constitution. If this be so, then the probabilities are that further legislation will be necessary to liquidate these claims, which should have been honored by the county directly, rather than by the indirect route through the State Treasury. In some counties the expenses are nearly double those in other counties representing greater Committee on Foreign Relations has taxable property. The taxpayers have to foot the bills whether they are honored by the county or State, and the most decent thing to do, if the Controller has no power to draw his warrants for the claims as presented, is for the Legislature

THE Commissioners make shewing of the cost of constructing the sewers, in another column. We venture the assertion that the work has been well done, and for as little money as could be expected. We hope the good work will be continued until the town is well and thoroughly sewered. We hope that a bill will pass bonding the town for $25,000 to complete the work.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.

John Z. White, Esq.—Sir: I have received the invitation of the Tariff Reform League to be present at a convention of tariff reformers to be held in Chicago. I have also read a circular of the League, accompanying the invitation, in which the objects and purposes of the convention are specific. purposes of the convention are specifically set forth. The scheme of practical and efficient work therein described meets with my hearty approval, and promises, if honestly adhered to, the most valuable aid in the furtherance of a cause which is very near to the interests and welfare of our people. The danger which we have to guard The danger which we have to guard against is the misleading of our countrymen by specious theories, cunningly contrived, and falsely offering to the people relief from the present burden and the legitimate expense necessary to secure the benefits of a beneficent rule under the sanction of free institutions. The declared purposes of your Legue will not be attained until all those interested in the economic question which is now presented upon their attention are freed from all sophistries and clouding fallacies, and until the subject of tariff reform is presented to them as a topic involving the relief of them as a topic involving the relief of the plain people of the land in their homes from useless and unjust expense. The question is a simple and a plain one and needs but to be fairly pre-sented to be understood. It is the positive duty of your organization to guard the people against deception. My extreme interest in the work which your League has undertaken, and in the express objects of the proposed convention would lead me to accept your invitation if it were possible to do so. But my public duties here positively prevent such acceptance. Hoping that the convention will be very successful, and with an earnest wish for the prosperity and success of your League in its efforts to enlighten and benefit the people. I am yours, very truly, GROVER CLEVELAND.

THE FACTS.

The Commissioners Explain the EDITOR GAZETTE: At a public meet ng some weeks ago, when, among other matters, the bill authorizing the nance of bonds for sewer purposes in Reno was under discussion, much unfavorable comment was indulged in at the expense of the Commissioners It was charged that a large amount of money had been expended in the construction of sewers which were practically worthless; that $18,000 or more had been expended upon a work that could and should have been accomplished for 19,000. It was also stated that not one of the fifty property owners on the line of the sewers had made connections. Evidently these comments came from gentlemen who gives, or furnishes, or transfers to, or had not taken the trouble to inform themselves of the facts.

For the information of all concerned a brief statement of the transactions of the Board and the history of the work we hope will not be considered out of order. In the first place, the Commissioners did not undertake the work upon their own motion, but did so upon a petition presented in the usual form and signed by a large number of the most prominent residents and taxpayers of Reno, in which the importance of the work was set forth, and immediate action urged. The petition was filed with the Board May 1, 1887, and contains among others such names as John bunderland, A. Benson, C. C. Powning, S. O. Wells, Bank of Nevada, Henry Ruhe, B. F. Leete, Coffin & Larcombe, A. H. Barnes, C. W. Booton, Julia D. Lee, S. S. Shoe-maker, R. S. Osburn, R. L. Fulton, Gallatin & Folsom, E. C. Leadbetter, and S. D. King.

In obedience to this petition and what then seemed to be the unanimous wish of the people of Reno, the work was undertaken. Several months were consumed in formulating a plan. Col. Geo. E. Waring, an engineer of national reputation, Gen. C. W. Irish and others were consulted, and as a result it is believed a perfect plan was adopted. The first work done was to have made a complete survey and map of the proposed system, with all grades permanently established. The base line consists of a large intercepting drain running east and west along the river front the entire length of the city limits, upon a grade that shall come to the surface east of town, and thus, if necessary, avoid dumping the sewage into the river. All the sewers thus far laid are made to conform to a uniform grade, so that the work may be far laid are made to conform to a uni-form grade, so that the work may be continued from time to time as neces-sity may require, without the least alteration in the grade. The pipe is sufficiently large to perform all the service that will ever be required. The total length of sewer pipe laid is 18,410 feet, as follows: Twelve-inch mains, 3,000 feet; 3-inch mains, 6,282 feet; 6-inch mains, 9,128 feet. Total, 18,410 feet.

The cost of construction, as shown by the Treasurer's books, was: Material and labor, $18,187 54; surveying, $410; expert, $150. Total, $18,747 54.

This is an average cost of one dollar, one cent and eight-tenths of a cent per foot. Deduct from this the cost of surveys and maps and that of the expert (an expense necessarily incurred before the work of construction began), and we find the cost of the sewer now completed to be a fraction less than completed to be a fraction less than one dollar per foot.

It should be borne in mind that all

The funds to carry on the work was obtained from the two local banks, and the interest to February 1, 1889, amounted to $1,364.83, which has been paid out of the corporation fund; and, in addition thereto, $1,416.17 has been paid upon the principal, leaving a bal-ance due the banks, February 1, 1889, of $17,331.37.

CONNECTIONS.

At every lot throughout the entire length of the sewer, whether vacant or not, provisions were made for conor not, provisions were made for con-nections. There are 225 places on the line of the sewers where it is necessary that connections should be made at once, and of this number 135 have al-ready connected, and the Commis-sioners are informed that all others will be made as soon as spring opens, without resort to the unpleasant work of coercion.

When the work was commenced it was thought that about 25,000 feet of pipe would answer for all practical purposes for several years to come. In our judgment that estimate was not far out of the way. There should be about 8,000 feet of pipe laid this summer, 3,000 feet between the railroad and the river and 5,000 feet leading out into the western addition. A permanent and more perfect arrangement should be made for flushing. This done and connections made as they should be, Reno can boast of as perfect a sewer system as exists anywhere. We now flush at six points, from the English ditch at a cost of twelve dollars per month. We also flush at seven points from the Reno Water Company's supply, for which is paid thirty dollars per month.

"CITIZEN" ANSWERED.

A Synopsis of the Law Relating to

DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S OFFICE, RENO, Nev., Feb. 19, 1889. EDITOR GAZETTE: In compliance with your request, in yesterday's issue | chair. of the GAZETTE, I shall endeavor to give the information desired by "A

The act prohibiting lotteries, approved March 7, 1873, defines a lottery to be any scheme for the disposal of or distribution of property by chance, either by raffle or gift enterprise, or by whatever name the same may be Elections.

Every person who contrives, pre pares, sets up, proposes or draws any lottery; or every person who sells, for any other person any ticket, chance, share or interest; or any paper, certificate or instrument purporting or understood to be or repreporting or understood to be or represent any ticket, chance, share or interest in or depending upon the event of any lottery; or every person who aids or assists, either by printing, writing, advertising, publishing, or otherwise in setting up, managing or drawing any lottery, or in selling or disposing of any ticket, chance or share therein; or every person who opens, sets up, or keeps by himself; or by any other person, any office or other place for the sale of or fer registering the number of any ticket in any lottery, or who by printing, writing or otherwise advertises or publishes the setting up, opening or using of any such office; or every person who lets or permits to be used any building or vessel or any portion thereof, knowing that it is to be used for setting up, managing or drawing any lottery, or for the purpose of selling or disposing of lottery tickets is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is punishable by a fine in any sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a term not exceeding six months; or by both such fine and Imprisonment.

The foregoing are the main features of the act prohibiting lotteries, other than all moneys and property offered for sale or distribution in violation of sent any ticket, chance, share or in-

than all moneys and property offered for sale or distribution in violation of any provision of the act are forfeited to the State.

When a proper complaint is made it is the duty of the officers of the law, including myself, to exercise the same diligence in securing a conviction for any violation of this act, as it is to secure a conviction for the violation of any other provision of law which provides for the protection of the citizens of the State, and they will do it.

It may be well to suggest, in this connection, that if there are those who have considered the act a dead letter, and violated its provisions in the past, that Washoe county voiced her senti-ment against lotteries on the 11th inment against lotteries on the 11th instant, and to be consistent, will demand in the future that the law be honored in its observance, not in its breach. Very Respectfully,

D. ALLEN,

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran alone," Luray, Va., writes: "I advertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am sure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the bappiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous, and llable to terminate in Pneumonia. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. Being still very weak and sick, she began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which restored her to vigorous health."

can not state with trunt that we had but one match, and enlarge on the anxiety with which we watched it "flicker, almost go out, and then burn bright and clear;" but I can not—we all had plenty of matches. But in the excitement it seemed as if none of us would ever find them. It looked as if the fire had covered half the distance to us before the first match was mediated then it.

fore the first match was produced, then it was my brother sentinel who brought it to light. He ran a short distance in front of the wagon, which stood parallel with the fire, so that the fire he proposed starting would not reach the horses, and knelt in the tall grass. The first match went out, quite after the most approved form. The next did better, it burned, the dry burch of grass caught, the flames swirled up in our faces as we leaned anxjously over it, and then leaped to the next bunch, then to both sides away to the north, making us a rapidly growing oasis of safety. It was none too soon. We cut the picket ropes and led the horses around upon the burned space, one of us beating out the feeble flames that tried to work toward the wind. We hastily pushed the wagon to a place of safety, and stood be-wagon to a place of safety, and stood behind it to screen our faces from the flerce heat. The fire swept up to our little burned spot, reached over angrily, but found nothing to feed on, again leaped high in the air, swayed, wave red, flickered and went out. We were saved.

The air was hot and stifling for several minutes, then came the cool, strong wind which was now sweeping the flames away to the north, our little saving fire overtaken and swallowed up in the greater. A half hour later there was a feeling as if a great a thunder-storm. There was no sound save the steady rush of the wind, which was not loud, as the long, dry grass it had mur-mured through before was gone. In the morning the brownish-gray landscape of the day before was black as night.

The coal-black ashes lay every where and were hurled about by the wind. Far to the north across the black billows of the prai-great, broad, startling skulls lying white and ghostlike in the sea of black.

POPPING THE QUESTION.

Nothing is more deplorable than an interval in a proposal of marriage, says a writer in the San Francisco Examiner. The matter should be gone through with speedily once your attack begins. It is an attack always. No matter how ready-hearted Angela may be, there is a little perfunctory heattancy only natural to her modesty and

Over in the northeastern part of the White Earth reservation is a grave-yard where lie the remains of those who have gone to the happy hunting grounds. The original style of burial that prevailed among the tribe before white men set foot the continent has been followed to some among the tribe before white men set foot on the continent has been followed to some extent. The graves are in the branches of big trees. A resting place for the dead has been made of branches and sticks half woven together and fastened to the limb of the tree, and on these, covered with bark, and with bow and arrow on their breasts, ready for use in the land of the great spirit, the remains are laid, high enough to be out of reach of wolves, if there are any, forever and forever rocked to sleep as the wind blows through the grave. Sometimes, at night, when the moon ahines in the clear sky, an Indian woman comes from her tepee and sits in the shadow of 'the great oak tree that is her husband's grave and she sings a song—a sort of low, plaintive Travelers in the Far West. Were it not for the possibilities of "back firing" the annals of prairie fires would record many deaths. I remember, says a writer in the New York Tribuns, in 1878 being with a little party in what is now Sully County, D. T., exploring for a good town site where we might found a city and with a small effort on our part become millionaires. We camped one night near the headwaters of the Okobojo creek. The grass all about was thick and tall. All day long we had noticed a smokiness about the air, and as evening approached the strong south wind brought a faint odor of fire. As darkness settled down we could cak tree that is her husband's grave and she sings a song—a sort of low, plaintive chant of sorrow for her dead. In autumn, says the Minneapolis Tribins, when the leaves fall from the tree, she gathers them and takes them to her tepec, where she makes a couch for her children to sleep on. If she passes under the grave of her dead husband by daylight she does not look up at it, but turns her eyes to the ground and gives a sort of mournful cry, as if she were calling to the dead man, and had not the heart to look to fearn if he had heard her voice. Some dozens of these graves are scattered through the timber land on the reservation. Some have been there for years, and are covered with moss and dead fire. As darkness settled down we could see a dull red reflection low on the southern horizon. We knew there was an extensive fire in that direction, but did not think it fire in that direction, but did not think it would reach us that night, so lay down to sleep with no feeling of uneasiness. There were four in the party; two slept in the wagon, while the other two, I being one of them, took blankets and made beds in the grass. One lay a little distance in front of the wagon and the other as far behind, with the idea that we would see the two. the idea that we would seent horse thieves, either white or red, should any appearsomething we certainly should not have done. In the night came the fire. reservation. Some have been there for years, and are covered with moss and dead leaves. Flocks of bluejays haunt the wood where these bodies lie, and they send out screams as mournful as the scenes around them all day long. It is a desolate spot, where white men seldom go, even in midday, and where the only sound that breaks done. In the night came the fire. One of the horses fell over me at two o'clock in the morning, and the frightened animal rushed on to the end of its picket line, and tugged at it, and set up that unearthly noise which only a horse is capable of when badly scared. My companion on guard awoke about the same time, while the solemn stillness at night is the song of the Indian woman and the cry of a hybrid those in the wagon speedily tumbled out. We were none of us too soon—we could feel wildcat that prowls through the darkness Some of the Indians believe that the grea We were none of us too soon—we could feel the heat on our faces. But a little distance to the south—perhaps it was farther than it seemed, but it was not far—it was a fierce, high-leaping, surging, roaring wall of fire. The smoke rolled above our heads and almost touched the white wagon-top. The fire surged and rose and fell, and leaped and plunged, and crackled and roared, and the black, burned grass stems—some of them still glowing—were driven in our faces and Some of the Indians believe that the great spirit comes down and protects the dead, and when in the winter the wind makes a creaking through the woods they say "the great spirit is in the trees," and they put out the fires in the tepees, and, sitting around the ashes, chant mournfully, and sit shivering in their blankets till the wind dies away or the morning dawns. still glowing—were driven in ou. faces and settled around us. blackmail for wedding presents. Is it, asks the London Standard, a merit in a man to woo and win a pretty woman? Or is it a merit in a woman to captivate a gided numbskull, that they should immediately levy blackmail upon all their friends; aye, and even their bare acquaintances? Doubtless there is a considerable amount of the workers are considerable amount of the workers are considerable amount of shrewdness and perseverance displayed in the pursuit; hence it may be considered a highly meritorious action when two young people succeed in the endeavor to make each other miserable for life. But why should we, who are not in the smallest degree gainers by the interesting event, open our sometimes sparsely-lined purses in order to give either gentleman or his betrothed a wedding present? If a man goes up to the city daily for the purpose of making money, the world says he is a shrewd fellow, with no fool's flesh about him; and if by any chance he may make a lucky coup upon the stock exchange, or in whatever business he may devote his labors to the worship of the golden calf, his friends will either say he has the luck of Lucifer, or perhaps that he is a hard-headed, steady worker, and deserves his coveted prize. They do not rush off to Regent street in search of some costly tribute; rather would they expect him to benefit them in some way in giving a little dinner at Richmond or Greenwich. Why then should a man, because his friend writes to him saying: "My darling Chriscable has promised to make me the happlest of men," im-mediately begin to rack his brains in order to discover what he shall buy as a suitable wedding present? Would it not be far more sensible, and perhaps more heartfelt, if he wrote to his friend and wished him joy of his great good luck in winning the lady of his love! Surely there would be more real feeling, a such a convex than in the little feeling in such a course than in the little packet which is sent straight from the sil-Jones' compliments. At any rate, there would not be the feeling of loss attached to the action which must in many cases render the announcement of a friend's bliss a sub rather of annoyance than of gratifica tion. There are few people who are not glad to hear of a friend's projected mar-riage, and perhaps there are few also who do not feel the imposition of the wedding pres hesitancy, only natural to her modesty, and you must not give her the opportunity to turn the current of her wooing. Do not stop to tell her that you only take three glasses of claret with your dinner, or that you don't owe a cent in the world. Information of this sort you should convey to her long before you ask the momentous question; it is revelant, no doubt, and may abet your effort greatly, but yet it is presaic and out of keeping just at the moment of crisis. The more nakedly you confine yourself to declaring your love and asking her hand, the better. Bear in mind always that a proposal partakes of the nature of an onsiaught; that no matter how apt and willing your lady-love may be she has still a maidenly sense of preservation, and you must afford her no opportunity of avoidance, but bind nor most streamously to the issue. Give her the slightest pretext for branching off up a side issue of controversy and you will never pin her to the point.

At all times a woman's perception of deceit is keener than a man's, and it is peculiarly so when the matter under consideration concerns her affections. It is the charity, not the blindness, of women, which makes them tolerant of a want of charity in men they love. You can not cozen Angela, and it is distinctly indiscreet to make the attempt. Do not try to make her believe that you are a botter fellow than you are. If she gives you her heart it is not because you are the noblest of men. If we were loved for our deserts anly we should all die lorn bachelors; it is in spite of your defects that she loves you, and it would do you no good to trick her if you could. Tell her honestly that you are but an indifferent honest fellow, not more than passably clever, not too well furnished in worldly gear—say this by way of preface, leaving her no opportunity for other interruption than a formal protest at your self-depreciation—and then—then at her, my merryman; tell ber how you love her, and have no fear of pitching your song too high on this point—awear that you love the str "I have used St. Patrick's Pills," says Mr. J. THE GAZETTE AND STOCKMAN

Is the only newspaper published in the region between the Rocky and Sierra Nevada Mountains devoted to the Live Stock and kindred interests.

We ask the hearty support of all cattle growers in the Sagebrush region. It will pay you to advertise your brands in a recognized stock journal. Remember, that one animal saved through advertising will pay for your brand for two or three years.

Mark your main brand on these cuts, iust as you want it to appear, and send us an order for publication, with the following blanks properly filled out:
